

automation (in analysis)

Mechanization with process control, where process means a sequence of manipulations. One or several functions in an analytical instrument may be automated. The corresponding adjective is automated and the verb is automate.

See also mechanization.

1989, 61, 1659