

internal standard (in chromatography)

A compound added to a sample in known concentration to facilitate the qualitative identification and/or quantitative determination of the sample components.

1993, 65, 837